-BEGIN TRANSMISSION-

HELLO! Well you can at least say HI back.
(It's OK, I'm shy too....)

Wow it sure has been a while since i have reached out in ANY way. Well let me tell ya. i'll be honest. there ain't much going on to report. BUT. That's where you come in. Help a ghoult out. tell me what's hip and new. I sure would appreciate it. I'll hide some contact info somewhere in this zine and you have to find it. then once you do. you can join the cause. If i don't get ANY responses. i'll have no choice but to raise the taxes on all of you. THE LOT OF YOU. And you don't want that. especially if you're on a fixed income. Now....as you were!!

Ya know, for the longest time I did a podcast, but then I got tired of interviewing bands so then I just played goofy music and EVEN THAT got old. Then I just had interesting people on, and it was pretty fun.

Then people stopped listening. and it became a labor of love. THEN I got lazy. Should I bring it back? Any local bands you'd like to hear interviewed? LEMME KNOW so yeah I kinda want to start hosting super cool music documentary/concert movie nights somewhere here in town soon, mostly viewings of out of print or rare stuff. i love watching concert movies especially, since they are sort of a novelty these days due to youtube. but believe it or not, there was once a day when the release of a concert on home video was a HUGE deal. titles that spring to mind off the top of my head include The Cure In Orange, INXS Live Baby Live, and the super rare Lucy Barks documentary about Nashville's old all ages record shop/venue, Lucy's Record Shop. Good idea/bad idea? Lemme know at culturecringemedia@gmail.com
